

Relationship between urban pollution and GDP per capita and population

There is a clear negative relationship between air pollution and city wealth. There also seems to be a relationship between region and pollution, with cities from Eastern Europe having higher pollution levels. The relationship between city size and pollution is not clear, as we see cities of all sizes scattered all over the spectrum of pollution levels.

